OUR CONTRIBUTORS

The diarist who prefers to remain anonymous spent some weeks this summer visiting rural schools in the Southern Appalachians. He is himself a native of the Southern Highland region.

WILLIAM E. COLE is professor of sociology at the University of Tennessee, Knoxville.

GROFF CONKLIN is Consultant in the Division of Public Relations of the Bureau of the Census at Washington, D. C.

DORA READ GOODALE is a worker at the Uplands Sanatorium, Pleasant Hill, Tennessee.

ROBERT K. SALYERS is Administrator for Kentucky of the National Youth Administration. This year he is also serving as president of the Kentucky Conference of Social Work.

WALTER W. SIKES, associate professor of philosophy and religion at Berea College, Berea, Kentucky, is a member of the Executive Committee of the Fellowship of Southern Churchmen.

JOHN A. SPELMAN III, of Pine Mountain, Kentucky, expresses himself in art forms as far apart as poetry and linoleum blocks.

PAUL L. VOGT, Senior Social Scientist of the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, recently toured a number of the study clubs in the Southern Appalachian area.

DONALD L. WEST, though now working in churches near Bethel, Ohio, remembers vividly his Georgia background.
